

Im Rahmen des Freundschaftsvertrages mit der University of Notre Dame laden wir Sie herzlich zu folgendem Vortrag ein:

Media Malaise: American Journalism Confronts Historic Change

by Professor Robert Schmuhl

American Studies and Journalism
University of Notre Dame, Indiana, USA

Tuesday, 3 June 2008, 5.30 p.m.
HS G (old building, Innrain 52, 2nd floor)

Abstract

“Media Malaise: American Journalism Confronts Historic Change” will focus on the proliferation of information sources and the impact of economic and technological developments on traditional forms of news—newspapers, magazines, and broadcast outlets. As sources multiply, audiences fragment, and the media landscape dramatically changes. What do these conditions mean to the understanding of Americans about their country and the world?

Robert Schmuhl

Robert Schmuhl is Walter H. Annenberg-Edmund P. Joyce Chair in American Studies and Journalism and Director of the John W. Gallivan Program in Journalism, Ethics & Democracy. He has published extensively in the fields of American journalism and American political life, with titles like The Responsibilities of Journalism (ed., 1984), Indecent Liberties (2000), and most recently In So Many Words: Arguments and Adventures (2006). Professor Schmuhl has written for numerous popular newspapers and magazines and appeared on well-known television and radio programs in the U.S. and abroad.

Organized by the Department of American Studies
Univ.-Prof. Mag. Dr. Gudrun M. Grabher

in cooperation with

Ao. Univ.-Prof. Dr. Theo Hug (ims; Institut für Erziehungswissenschaften)

Ao. Univ.-Prof. DDr. Günther Pallaver (Institut für Politikwissenschaft)

Univ.-Prof. Dr. Thomas Schröder (Institut für Germanistik)