

Elisabetta Ježek (University of Pavia)

Elisabetta Ježek is Associate Professor of Linguistics in the Department of Humanities (personal site), University of Pavia, where she teaches Syntax and Semantics and Computational Linguistics (introductory and advanced courses). Her research interests and areas of expertise include lexical and compositional semantics, verb classification, theory of argument structure, event structure in syntax and semantics, corpus analysis, language technology and natural language processing. She has coordinated the project and the creation of the TPAS resource. She has edited several major works in theories and models of lexicon and their computational application. Her publications include: Lessico: Classi di Parole, Strutture, Combinazioni, Il Mulino, 2005 (2nd ed. 2011); The Lexicon: An Introduction, Oxford University Press, 2016; Linguistica Computazionale: introduzione all'analisi automatica dei testi (with R. Sprugnoli), Il Mulino, 2023. She is currently heading the University of Pavia's Work Package 5 of the European EC2U Alliance, dedicated to promoting collaborative education and research among European Universities (University of Coimbra, Salamanca, Poitiers, Jena, Iasi, Turku, Linz). She is the University of Pavia's coordinator of the EC2U Joint Master Degree in European Languages, Cultures and Societies in Contact and of the EC2U Virtual Institute on Quality Education. She has been National Secretary of the Italian Linguistics Society from 2006 to 2014. Since 2019, she has been a Member of the Board of the Italian Association in Computational Linguistics (AILC) and the Head of the Scientific Committee of the PhD School Lectures on Computational Linguistics